Who is Oppy?

On July 8th, 2003, NASA sent a rover to Mars named Opportunity, lovingly nicknamed Oppy.

A dust storm covered the planet and interrupted communication. June 10th 2018, Oppy entered a hibernation state after its solar panels were rendered useless after being covered in dust.

The last communication NASA received roughly translated to "My battery is low and it's getting dark."

NASA hoped a recurring windy period starting in November 2018 would clear off Oppy's solar panels and it would awaken from hibernation. NASA sent over 100 messages trying to reestablish contact with Oppy. They even created a playlist of the songs they sent to the rover, titled "Opportunity, Wake Up!"

After countless failed communications culminating in Billie Holiday's "I'll Be Seeing You", NASA declared on February 13th, 2019 that Oppy's mission was complete

MADEIRA COLLECTION

An island off the coast of Morocco, yet a Portuguese territory, almost always leads to Port comparisons. Although both are fortified, the lion's share of Madeira comes from white grapes. A process known as the Canteiro method exposes these wines to intense heat, while undergoing unfathomably long periods of barrel maturation. The result gives us one of the most amazing dessert wines in the world.

A HIGHLIGHT ON CHÂTEAU d'YQUEM

When Sauternes were classified in 1855, the top estates were awarded with higher Prestige than what we would call 'Village' or base level wines. Of those 27 Châteaux, only one was awarded PREMIER CRU SUPÉRIEUR, and we are happy to share our selections with you.
